

Applied Health Behavior Research (AHBR) Courses - Enrollment Open!

The Master of Science in Applied Health Behavior Research Program offers a variety of courses to open enrollment students are designed for professionals who wish to gain a wider perspective of how health behaviors impact clinical outcomes. Each course provides a practical opportunity to cultivate new skills for career engagement and advancement.

Summer 2021 Semester Course Offerings

- Counseling Skills for Healthcare Professionals (M88-512A; 3 credits)
- Health Psychology (M88-515; 3 credits)
- Introduction to SPSS (M88-551; 1 credit)
- Introduction to Using RedCAP for Research (M88-550; 1 credit)
- Fundamentals of Exercise Science, Fitness, and Healthy Aging Research (M88-510; 3 credits)

All courses are eligible for the HR Tuition Benefit and Workforce Development Scholarship.

New Workforce Development Scholarship Opportunity!

The Master of Science in Applied Health Behavior Research is now offering scholarship opportunities to WashU employees seeking to advance their skills and multi-disciplinary training through open enrollment coursework in order to contribute to the conduct and evaluation of research.

Purpose of Scholarship

To offset tuition costs for graduate level training for professionals; may be combined with the HR Tuition Benefit

Who Can Apply

Full-time or part-time WashU employees (no employment anniversary requirement) who have previously earned a bachelor degree, but are not currently enrolled in another degree or certificate program

Coursework

Accepted applicants are eligible to enroll in any AHBR course offerings, up to 6 credit hours

When to Apply

Applicants are encouraged to apply by May 1, 2021 for Summer 2021 Semester; Application is attached

For more information, visit the AHBR website or contact ahbr@wustl.edu.

Attachments:

AHBR Workforce Development Scholarship Application